proposed amendments to the Mann bill, and criticized the lawmakers for their alleged tardiness.

A resolution, introduced by the Rev. George H. Spooner, was unanimously endorsed and a committee was appointed to make the matter known to the legislators.

The resolution, headed "An open letter to the members of the General Assembly of Virginia," was in effect a request that they "enact such legislation at this session as will give us in reality what the law of two years ago purported to give, but which has been evaded by issuing charters to 'clubs' * * * and the sale of intoxicants under the guise of 'cider.'"

These requests follow statements to the effect that it is commonly reported that temperance legislation may not be considered because of lack of time.
